

IB Chemistry teacher required, Herlufsholm School

Herlufsholm School is looking to recruit an IB DP Chemistry Teacher from 1st January 2025, or as soon as possible thereafter. The position can be either full-time or part-time. Experience of teaching the IB program or in English would be beneficial, but not essential. The role could also include general science teaching in the Pre-IB.

We are a small IB department in a larger Danish gymnasium. The IB teaching team works very closely in order to ensure the best conditions for teaching and learning for our international students. In general, our science classes in IB are small (4-10 students) allowing teachers to form close learning relationships with students and provide greater opportunities for nurturing individual progress.

The ideal candidate would have a passion for the teaching of chemistry and the wider sciences, have a fluency in English that would enable student learning, and have a structured and targeted approach to developing subject curriculums.

The school has in recent years implemented a raft of new pedagogical approaches of which the new candidate would be expected to be part of and help develop.

We offer a modern workplace:

- An exciting position in a traditional and prestigious organization that is constantly evolving
- Access to facilities such as a fitness room, tennis/padel courts, group training, etc.

About Herlufsholm Skole og Gods

Herlufsholm welcomes both day and boarding students from Denmark and abroad. We have approximately 450 students from 6th grade to the final year of high school (3.g), with about half residing at the school as boarding students from 8th grade to 3.g. At Herlufsholm, our aim is to foster a caring and inspiring study environment based on high academic standards and mutual respect, both among colleagues and between students and teachers.

*We actively participate in international initiatives and are the only school in Scandinavia that is a member of Round Square. Additionally, we offer our students the opportunity to participate in The Award program and provide a rich activity program alongside their studies.
